YOUR SPECIAL PLACE—THE BASEMENT

It has been reported that besides kitchen and bath renovations, finished basements provide the biggest return on homeowners' investments. But never mind the long-term financial benefits basements provide. Consider the other ways your basement can pay you back:

Basements are cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter. Because they are naturally insulated by the earth, you'll spend less on heating and cooling costs and you will find yourself drawn to the basement on particularly hot or cold days.

If you long for an escape from the hectic comings-and-goings upstairs, get away to the basement. On the other hand, if your children's playroom or your spouse's exercise room makes too much of a racket where it is, move it to the basement and reclaim the quiet upstairs.

Maybe you want a home office or sewing room. Maybe even more closet space. With a basement, you could always move the office or sewing room downstairs and have plenty of closet space for all your items.

With less and less space available around the house, expanding down is usually a more attractive option than expanding out.

Consumers are asking home designers for more and more out of their laundry rooms, and the basement is one spot where it's easy to deliver. It offers space that is usually hard to come by on a homes' main level. There is usually easy access to necessary components like water and drainage in the basement area.

TIRED OF CUTTING WOOD?

Wood-burning fireplaces can be a real hassle. They require constant attention, cause a big mess and pose a potential fire risk. Gas log fireplaces are growing in popularity and are an ideal choice for anyone who wants to enjoy the warmth of a fire without the chores of hauling wood and cleaning ashes. Gas log fireplaces are maintenance free, come in a variety of

Entertaining can be a blast in a fully outfitted recreation room, complete with a pool table or other fun accessories. Decorate however you would like, and have fun with it — homeowners often feel more comfortable taking chances with decorating themes in their basements that they might be hesitant to try upstairs. A walk-out basement can be even more suited for entertaining in warm weather if it opens up to a patio or backyard.

If you want to really indulge — and enjoy the peace and quiet of the basement — consider adding a whirlpool or sauna to your basement.

With all of the possible options, it's no surprise that more and more homeowners are discovering the benefits of basements.

Call Can Do Construction for a free estimate on what it would take to make your basement your special area.

CAN DO CONSTRUCTION AND TONY BENNETT

September 25, 2004—Over 75 valued Can Do Construction customers enjoyed an evening with Tony Bennett performing live at the Weidner Center, located on the University of Wisconsin's Green Bay campus.

Tony Bennett was born Anthony Dominick Benedetto, on August 13, 1926 in Astoria in New York, USA. The son of an Italian father and American mother, Bennett studied music and painting at the High School of Industrial Arts. He later became a talented artist, exhibiting under his real name in New York, Paris and London. Originally possessing a tenor voice that would deepen over the years, Bennett sang during service with the US Army's entertainment unit late in World War II. Upon his discharge he worked in clubs before joining a Pearl Bailey revue in Greenwich Village as singer and master of ceremonies under the name of Joe Bari, where he was spotted by Bob Hope. Hope engaged Bari to sing in his Paramount show and changed Baris' name to Tony Bennett

"The concrete work that Can Do Construction did for us was nothing less than a work of art...and then we get offered tickets to see Tony Bennett, one of my favorite performers! I like the way they do business." said one valued customer.
